PROGRAM

(Guide to consultants and speakers at the end of the Program.)

Thursday, March 26

9:00 am-5:00 pm

REGISTRATION

---

11:45 am-1:00 pm

---

LUNCH: NICKLAUS-PALMER AREA

---

Opening Remarks: Charles W. Connell
Project Co-Director, FACDIS
Department of History, West Virginia University

1:00-2:30 pm

---

AFRICAN STUDIES SESSION I: ROOM 501

---

Chairperson: Robert Maxon (Department of History, West Virginia University)

Consultant: James Newman (Department of Geography, Syracuse University)

Abstract: Professor Newman will look at current trends in research in African studies, and he will particularly focus on a crucial area of concern to Africanists: food production and African rural life. He will assess political and economic as well as environmental factors affecting food production in Africa.

1:00-2:30 pm

---

EAST ASIAN STUDIES SESSION I: ROOM 502

---

Chairperson: Richard Little (Department of Geography, West Virginia University)

Consultant: John Israel (Department of History, University of Virginia)

Abstract: Professor Israel will examine American approaches to the study of modern and contemporary China and will discuss, in comparative perspective, Chinese intellectuals' views of their own history, culture, and society.

CONTEMPORARY EUROPEAN STUDIES SESSION I: ROOM 601-602

---

Chairperson: Charles Connell (Department of History, West Virginia University)

Consultant: Robert Bezucha (Department of History, Amherst College)

Abstract: Professor Bezucha will share his experience as a reviewer of research proposals for the Social Science Research Council. In discussing trends in research grants as predictors of the future areas of study, he will assess the impact on the study of contemporary Europe now and for some time to come.

LATIN AMERICAN STUDIES SESSION I: ROOM 503

---

Chairperson: John Super (Department of History, West Virginia University)

Consultant: E. Bradford Burns (Department of History, UCLA)

Abstract: Strategies and tactics that can strengthen the programs of Latin American studies at colleges and universities throughout the state will be discussed. The focus is on how to increase student and community participation in classes and other activities pertaining to Latin America. Examples of successful programs in institutions comparable to those in West Virginia will be given.

MIDDLE EASTERN STUDIES SESSION I: ROOM 504

---

Chairperson: Patricia Ryan (Department of Political Science, Fairmont State College)

Consultant: Don Peretz (Department of Political Science, SUNY-Binghamton)

Abstract: Professor Peretz will discuss the problems of overcoming stereotypes in teaching about the Middle East. He will address such questions as—What are some of the common stereotypes, how have they become instilled in students? Can university professors compete with the media in the battle of stereotypes? What are some of the weapons (tools) in the battle to overcome stereotypes?

1:00-2:30 pm

2:30-2:45 pm

BREAK

---

2:45-4:15 pm

---

AFRICAN STUDIES SESSION II: ROOM 501

---

Chairperson: Robert Maxon (Department of History, West Virginia University)

Consultant: James Newman (Department of Geography, Syracuse University)

Abstract: Professor Newman will discuss different approaches to teaching courses about Africa. He will stress a back to basics approach.

EAST ASIAN STUDIES SESSION II: ROOM 502

---

Chairperson: Richard Little (Department of Geography, West Virginia University)

Consultant: John Israel (Department of History, University of Virginia)

Abstract: Professor Israel will explore approaches to teaching about Vietnam on the undergraduate level, with particular reference to Vietnam's American interlude.

CONTEMPORARY EUROPEAN STUDIES SESSION II: ROOM 601-602

---

Chairperson: Charles Connell (Department of History, West Virginia University)

Consultant: Robert Bezucha (Department of History, Amherst College)

Abstract: In a general discussion of "what works" in the teaching of contemporary Europe, Professor Bezucha will focus very specifically on the question of "retooling." If one tries to introduce new approaches or new themes (e.g. women's history) in the variety of courses already taught, what do you have to give up in the process? Are the trade-offs and hard work really worth it?

2:45-4:15 pm

---

LATIN AMERICAN STUDIES SESSION II: ROOM 503

---

Chairperson: John Super (Department of History, West Virginia University)

Consultant: E. Bradford Burns (Department of History, UCLA)

Abstract: This session focuses on the interdisciplinary approach in Latin American Studies and offers several specific examples of topics employing such an approach. From these examples, the strengths, weaknesses, and applicability of the approach are evaluated.

MIDDLE EASTERN STUDIES SESSION II: ROOM 504

---

Chairperson: Patricia Ryan (Department of Political Science, Fairmont State College)

Consultant: Don Peretz (Department of Political Science, SUNY-Binghamton)

Abstract: Professor Peretz will discuss American foreign policy in the Middle East. He will address such questions as—What are the principal areas of U.S. concern and involvement in the area? What has been the record of past success and failure in dealing with the region? What are the prospects for the way in which the new administration will deal with these critical issues?

4:15-4:30 pm

---

The following sessions will be conducted by Committee Chairpersons, in cooperation with the consultants, and will be devoted to review of a wide variety of teaching materials, both printed and audio-visual, in each area. Recently published books and other materials will be on display, and new films will be available for viewing.

4:30-6:00 pm

FACULTY DISCUSSION OF COURSE PROJECTS

---

Prefatory Note: Before approving the FACDIS grant, the U.S. Department of Education stipulated that we must include a mechanism for assuring that faculty attendance at the Workshops would have a tangible impact on teaching International Studies. Our plan for meeting this stipulation is based upon the National Science Foundation Short Courses. In this model, faculty meet together for two days for the purpose of learning about and conceptualizing strategies for course development, revision, or enrichment. After making commitments for such course development, revision, or enrichment, the faculty then return to their colleges and universities, implement their plans, and gather again a year or so later for the purpose of sharing their experiences.

The following sessions will be a time for discussing instructional plans with your colleagues. During these sessions, you will indicate, at least tentatively, what project you plan to explore either individually or jointly with others during the following year. It may be anything you desire including, but not limited to, developing a student discussion guide for one of the new films purchased by FACDIS, evaluation of other teaching materials, preparation of a syllabus, development of a new course, revision of a current course, introduction of audio-visual materials, etc. At this session you will be asked to lay out a tentative project and provide a copy to the Chairperson. This will then accompany the summary of our Workshop in our Performance Report to the U.S. Department of Education. Whatever tentative project you put forward at the Workshop can, of course, be modified afterwards or changed if you prefer another.

10:45-11:45 am

Our 1981 Workshop will be followed a year later by another FACDIS Workshop. At that time, the faculty who attended this year's Workshop will report either in person or in writing on the projects they implemented during the year. These reports will then become part of our next Performance Report for the third and last year of our grant.

Chairperson: Gregory Elmes (Department of Geography, West Virginia University)

Consultants: Anthony de Souza (Department of Geography, University of Wisconsin-Eau Claire)

Lakshman Yapa (Department of Geography, Pennsylvania State University)

Abstract: Professors Yapa and de Souza will work in close coordination during both Development Studies sessions. They will review a wide variety of approaches to and perspectives on development from free market economics to Third World socialism. Professor de Souza will present various analytical perspectives on development in a general, theoretical context. Professor Yapa will discuss and demonstrate results of one particular development case study emphasizing the basic needs approach. Both will present a variety of innovative teaching techniques, in particular, the dialectical approach.

AMERICAN FOREIGN POLICY SESSION I: ROOM 501

---

Chairpersons: George Rice (Department of Political Science, West Virginia University)
Wesley Bagby (Department of History, West Virginia University)
Consultant: Charles W. Kegley, Jr. (Department of Government and International Studies, University of South Carolina)

9:00-10:30 am

Abstract: Professor Kegley will outline emergent research orientations introduced to facilitate critical comparisons of research trends in the field of American Foreign Policy. Following this review, there will be a discussion of alternative models and approaches.

INTERNATIONAL LAW AND ORGANIZATION SESSION I: ROOM 502

---

Chairperson: Michael Strada (Department of Political Science, West Liberty State College)

Consultant: Karen Mingst (Department of Political Science, University of Kentucky)

Abstract: Professor Mingst will focus on substantive issues in International Law and Organization course content. Discussion will revolve around two central questions: What major trends are apparent in recent years in the professional study of International Law and Organization? What subject matter is most appropriate to an introductory International Law and Organization course at the undergraduate level?

INTERNATIONAL POLITICS SESSION I: ROOM 503

---

Chairperson: Della Sheldon (Department of Political Science, Bethany College)

Consultant: George A. Lopez (Political Science Department, Earlham College)

Abstract: Professor Lopez will review the "state of the art" on emerging research trends in international politics.

---

INTERNATIONAL TRADE AND ECONOMICS SESSION I: ROOM 504

---

Chairperson: Hassan Zavareei (Department of Economics, West Virginia Institute of Technology)

Consultant: Romir Chatterjee (Institute for Energy Research, SUNY-Stonybrook)

Abstract: Professor Chatterjee will examine the characteristics of non-OPEC developing countries, the role of energy and development, projection of commercial and non-commercial energy demands under different growth assumptions, and the impact of the world oil supply situation on these assumptions.

10:30-10:45 am

---

10:45 am-12:15 pm

AMERICAN FOREIGN POLICY SESSION II: ROOM 501

---

Chairpersons: George Rice (Department of Political Science, West Virginia University)

Wesley Bagby (Department of History, West Virginia University)

Consultant: Charles W. Kegley, Jr. (Department of Government and International Studies, University of South Carolina)

Abstract: Professor Kegley will focus on an inventory of some potential departures from conventional ways of organizing instruction in courses on American Foreign Policy.

INTERNATIONAL LAW AND ORGANIZATION SESSION II: ROOM 502

---

Chairperson: Michael Strada (Department of Political Science, West Liberty State College)

Consultant: Karen Mingst (Department of Political Science, University of Kentucky)

Abstract: Professor Mingst will survey pedagogical strategies for approaching the subject area of International Law and Organization. This will include both general teaching approaches and specific educational tools such as films, simulations, other audio-visual materials, etc.

INTERNATIONAL POLITICS SESSION II: ROOM 503

---

Chairperson: Della Sheldon (Department of Political Science, Bethany College)

Consultant: George A. Lopez (Political Science Department, Earlham College)

Abstract: Professor Lopez will discuss and demonstrate innovative teaching methods. He will address the question of how to translate research trends into teaching, and discuss whether efforts to do so make our task easier or more difficult.

10:45-12:15 pm

INTERNATIONAL TRADE AND ECONOMICS SESSION II: ROOM 504

---

Chairperson: Hassan Zavareei (Department of Economics, West Virginia Institute of Technology)

Consultant: Romir Chatterjee (Institute for Energy Research, SUNY-Stonybrook)

Abstract: Professor Chatterjee will characterize various solutions to the energy problems of the developing countries, the role of the rural and handicraft sector, renewal energy resources, and "alternative" development models under the current international oil supply situation.

THE HONORABLE PAUL SIMON, Member of the U.S. House of Representatives (D-Ill.). Congressman Simon has represented the 24th Congressional District since 1975. In the last Congress he was a member of the House Budget Committee and served on its Subcommittee on Defense and International Affairs. He was also a member of the House Education and Labor Committee, and served on three of its subcommittees: Select Education (of which he was chairman), Post-Secondary Education, and Employment Opportunities. Congressman Simon was a member of the Presidential Commission on Foreign Language and International Studies which he had helped to establish. Its final report on the state of international education in the United States was issued in November, 1979. This report, entitled Strength Through Wisdom: A Critique of U.S. Capabilities, provided an alarming assessment of American citizens' incompetence with foreign affairs and languages, and urged an ambitious program of education at all levels to rectify this situation. Congressman Simon is known as an outspoken supporter of the goals outlined in Strength Through Wisdom, and has introduced legislation to support the study of foreign languages and cultures. In particular, he assumed leadership for Title VI of the 1980 Higher Education Act which outlined the government's support for International Education Programs. In cooperation with other members of Congress, Congressman Simon has established an international education work group to work for implementation of the Presidential Commission's recommendations.

Prior to his election to the House, Congressman Simon was a newspaper editor and publisher of the Troy Tribune (1948-1966), was elected to the Illinois House of Representatives (1954-1962), to the State Senate (1962-1969), and served as Lieutenant Governor (1969-1973). Independent voters in Illinois awarded him the Best Legislator Award seven times. Congressman Simon has published several books, most recently The Politics of Hunger (1973) and The Tongue-Tied American (1980).

PHILIP FAINI AND MEMBERS OF THE WEST VIRGINIA UNIVERSITY PERCUSSION ENSEMBLE. Profesor Faini has organized and conducts one of West Virginia University's most famous musical groups—the Percussion Ensemble. The group's performance of authentic African music is possible because of Professor Faini's musical research conducted in Uganda, Kenya, Tanzania, and Ghana. Professor Faini tape recorded the music as Africans performed it (since Africans do not notate their music), and then transcribed it into musical notation for the Ensemble. The West Virginia University Ensemble has been sent on a nine-nation tour of South America by the U.S. Department of State. It is one of the most successful goodwill ambassadors of our country.

RICHARD N. ROSECRANCE (Ph.D., Harvard University). The Walter S. Carpenter, Jr. Professor of International and Comparative Politics, Department of Government, Cornell University. Professor Rosecrance is past president of the International Studies Association and is currently a member of the Council of the American Political Science Association. Throughout his professional life he has pursued an interest in military and security studies as well as international politics, and at one point served as a member of the Policy Planning Council of the U.S. Department of State with responsibilities in such policy areas as arms control and strategic planning. Professor Rosecrance has published many important books in international relations and security studies. Recently he edited a collection of essays by notable analysts in America as an Ordinary Country: U.S. Foreign Policy and the Future (Cornell University Press, 1976). One of Professor Rosecrance's books has been singled out as a "classic" and required reading in international systems analysis—Action and Reaction in World Politics: International Systems in Perspective (Little, Brown, 1963), recently reprinted by Greenwood Press (1977). His articles have appeared in a wide array of journals, most recently in International Organization, World Politics, Journal of Conflict Resolution, and Foreign Affairs. Professor Rosecrance has contributed chapters to several books, among the latest In Search of Global Patterns (The Free Press, 1976) and New Dimensions of World Politics (Halstead Press, 1975). Currently he is writing a book on international theory, tentatively entitled World Politics in Transformation. This work is an examination of the military-political world and the economic world, and the historical interaction between them from the 17th century to the present.

Consultants

Africa

JAMES L. NEWMAN (Ph.D., University of Minnesota). Department of Geography, Syracuse University. Professor Newman's areas of specialization are the geography of Africa, and, most particularly, ecology, drought, and famine in Africa. Professor Newman has published several books on Africa. Among the latest are two he has edited: Drought, Famine, and Population Movements in Africa (Syracuse University, 1975) and Contemporary Africa: Geography and Change (Prentice-Hall, 1976). His recent articles have appeared in such journals as The Professional Geographer, African Studies Review, and Ecology of Food and Nutrition. Professor Newman's latest chapter contributions have been published in Conceptual and Methodological Issues in Medical Geography (1980) and Ethnicity in Modern Africa (Westview Press, 1978).

East Asia

JOHN ISRAEL (Ph.D., Harvard University). Department of History, University of Virginia. Professor Israel's areas of specialization are modern China and recent Vietnamese history, in particular, U.S. relations with Vietnam. He has traveled several times to the People's Republic of China, most recently last year when he spent six months there. Professor Israel has published widely on China including a recent book, Rebels and Bureaucrats: China's December 9ers (co-authored with Donald W. Klein; University of California Press, 1976). His numerous articles have appeared in such journals as The China Quarterly, Daedalus, and The American Historical Review. Professor Israel's recent contributions to books on China and Asia include chapters in Nationalist China During the Sino-Japanese War, 1937-1945 (Exposition Press, 1977) and The China Guidebook (Eurasia Press, 1980).

Contemporary Europe

ROBERT BEZUCHA (Ph.D., University of Michigan). Department of History, Amherst College. Professor Bezucha specializes in modern European social history, art history, and social history. He is editor of Modern European Social History and authored Lyons Uprising 1834 (Harvard University Press, 1974). He is a member of the West European Committee on the Social Science Research Council, the National Committee for Integrating Women Into the Teaching of History, and Director of a Five-College Workshop on Social History. Professor Bezucha serves on the editorial boards of several journals: French Historical Studies, Marxist Perspectives, and Theory and Society.

Latin America

E. BRADFORD BURNS (Ph.D., Columbia University). Department of History, UCLA. Professor Burns has published numerous books on Latin America, several specializing in Brazilian history. Most recently he authored Latin American Cinema: Film and History (UCLA Latin American Center, 1975) and The Poverty of Progress: Latin America in the Nineteenth Century (University of California Press, 1980). Professor Burns has contributed chapters to many books, most recently Elites, Masses and Modernization in Latin America, 1850-1930 (University of Texas Press, 1979) and Teaching Latin American Studies (Latin American Studies Association, 1977). He has also authored articles in a wide array of journals, for example, Hispanic American Historical Review, Current History, Luso-Brazilian Review, the Journal of Latin American Lore, and Film & History. Professor Burns has received several awards for his scholarship at the same time he has maintained an active concern with instruction. For example, he chaired the Teaching Committee at a 1976 Conference on Latin American History, and, in 1978, organized a symposium for Los Angeles public school teachers on Brazil. Professor Burns is currently Dean of the Honors College at UCLA.

Middle East

DON PERETZ (Ph.D., Columbia University). Department of Political Science, SUNY-Binghamton. Professor Peretz has had long experience in Middle Eastern affairs. He has done research in the Middle East with grants from the Ford Foundation and the Rockefeller Foundation. Recently (1979) he returned from a year's Fulbright-Hays Lectureship at Haifa University in Israel. Professor Peretz has authored a number of books on Middle Eastern affairs of which the most recent are: The Palestine State: A Rational Approach (with Richard Ward and Evan M. Nelson, Kennikat Press, 1978) and Government and Politics of Israel (Westview Press, 1979). He has contributed articles to a wide array of journals including the Middle East Journal, Foreign Affairs, Orbis, and the Annals of the American Academy. In addition, Professor Peretz has contributed chapters to numerous books, for example, OPEC and the Middle East and Great Power Intervention in the Middle East. He has served as a member of the Board of Directors of the Middle East Studies Association of North America, and is currently on the Board of Advisory Editors for the Middle East Journal.

Development

ANTHONY DE SOUZA (Ph.D., University of Reading, England). Department of Geography, University of Wisconsin-Eau Claire. With the support of a Rockefeller Foundation grant, Professor de Souza has spent part of his academic career at the University of Dar es Salaam in Tanzania. He has published a number of books and monographs, most recently the Dialectics of Third World Development (Allanheld, Osmun & Co., 1980) and World Space-Economy (Charles E. Merrill Publishing, 1979). He has authored articles in a wide array of journals, for example, the Professional Geographer, Antipode, Revue Tiers-Monde, Ekistics, and Geographical Perspectives. In addition to his scholarship, Professor de Souza has devoted considerable professional attention to developing materials for instruction (including audio-visual), and to working with various geography education associations, for example, the National Council for Geographic Education and the Wisconsin Council for Geographic Education. Currently Professor de Souza is preparing a manuscript on The Urban Phenomenon in East Africa.

LAKSHMAN YAPA (Ph.D., Syracuse University). Department of Geography, Pennsylvania State University. Professor Yapa's areas of specialization are economic development in the Third World, political economy, and spatial diffusion. He has published articles in numerous journals: Geographical Analysis, Economic Geography, Annals of the American Association of Geographers, Antipode, Ceylon Geographer, Professional Geographer, and the Journal of Development Administration. Professor Yapa has also contributed chapters to such recent books as Rural Habitat Transportation in World Frontiers (1980) and Innovation Research and Public Policy (1980). He has served as a consultant to several government agencies in Sri Lanka.

American Foreign Policy

CHARLES W. KEGLEY, JR. (Ph.D., Syracuse University). Department of Government and International Studies, University of South Carolina. Professor Kegley's fields of specialization include American foreign policy, the comparative study of foreign policy, and international relations theory. He has published numerous books and monographs in these fields, most recently World Politics: Trend and Transformation (St. Martin's Press, 1981) and American Foreign Policy: Patterns and Process (St. Martin's Press, 1979). He has also edited a number of monographs and books, the latest being The Political Economy of Foreign Policy (Sage Publications, 1981) and Threats, Weapons, and Foreign Policy (Sage Publications, 1980). Other works include a wide array of articles in such journals as Social Science Quarterly, International Studies Quarterly, the Journal of Politics, and the Journal of Political Science. Professor Kegley has also contributed chapters to several books including Law-Making in the Global Community (Carolina Academic Press, 1981) and Challenge to America: U.S. Foreign Policy in the 1980s (Sage Publications, 1979). He is on the Editorial Board for International Studies Quarterly and is Co-Editor of the Sage International Yearbook of Foreign Policy Studies.

International Law and Organization

KAREN A. MINGST (Ph.D., University of Wisconsin-Madison). Department of Political Science, University of Kentucky. Professor Mingst's areas of specialization include international law and organization, and international politics. In the course of her research in inter-governmental commodity organizations and international law, Professor Mingst has traveled widely in Europe as well as in Latin America. She has published in numerous journals including, for example, Africa Today, Journal of Peace Research, Empirical Economics, Journal of Developing Areas, International Interactions, Journal of World Trade Law, International Organization, and the Journal of Common Market Studies.
